ATO reminder about appointing an SMSF auditor

The ATO is reminding trustees of self-managed super funds ('SMSFs') that they need to appoint an approved SMSF auditor no later than 45 days before the lodgment of their fund's SMSF annual return (for example, for the 2022 income year).

In particular, the ATO says:

"Don't risk approaching an auditor the day before you need to lodge as it will result in an overdue lodgment."

Approved SMSF auditors are an important part of your lodgment and reporting obligations.

They review your fund's financial statements and make sure you're complying with super law."

Importantly, an audit is required even if no contributions or payments were made to or from the SMSF in the financial year.

Super comparison tool updated

The Your Super comparison tool helps individuals compare My Super products and choose a super fund that meets their needs.

It ranks the performance of these products by fees and net returns.

Each year, the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority ('APRA') assesses the performance of each My Super product, and this information is displayed in the comparison tool. Updated information for the 2022/23 year is now available.

The comparison tool provides one of the following results for each My Super product:

- Performing – the product has met or exceeded the performance test benchmark.
- Underperforming – the product has not met the performance test benchmark.
- Not assessed – the product had less than five years of performance history and has not been rated by APRA.

Individuals who are members of underperforming My Super products will receive correspondence to notify them of the underperforming status.

Individuals can access a personalised version of the tool which allows them to view and compare their existing My Super products by doing the following:

- Log in to ATO online services through myGov.
- Go to the 'Super' drop-down menu and select 'Information', then select 'Your Super comparison'.

To access a non-personalised version of the tool (without logging into myGov), visit ato.gov.au/yoursuper

Small business tax incentives back on the table

The Albanese Government has confirmed its commitment to implementing two tax incentives aimed at supporting small businesses to train and upskill employees, and improve their digital and tech capacity.

The Technology Investment Boost and the Skills and Training Boost were announced in the 29 March 2022 Federal Budget but remain unlegislated.

Small businesses with an annual turnover of less than $50 million will be able to claim a 'bonus' 20% deduction for eligible expenditure on:

- external training of employees until 30 June 2024; and
- the uptake of digital technologies until 30 June 2023.

The incentives will be backdated to 29 March 2022.

Editor: These incentives are not yet law. If you have spent, or are considering spending, on training or digital technology, please contact our office for an update.

Rental properties and second-hand depreciating assets

The ATO is reminding taxpayers that have a residential rental property, to take care when making claims for 'second-hand depreciating assets' used in their properties.

In most cases, these are items that existed in the taxpayer's property when they purchased it, or were in their private residence (which they later rented out), such as:

- Flooring and window coverings;
- air conditioners, washing machines, alarm systems, spas, pool pumps; and
- items used for both the rental property and the taxpayer's own home.

Since 1 July 2017, taxpayers generally cannot claim the decline in value of second-hand depreciating assets (some limited exceptions do apply).

However, this rule does not apply to a property that was rented out before this date, or if it is newly built or substantially renovated (conditions apply).

If you have a residential rental property, to help us get your claim right, please answer the following:

- When did you purchase the property?
- Was it a new or existing build?
- Did you live in the property before renting it out?
- When did you start renting the property?
- Was the asset already in the rental property when you bought it?
- Is the property used for business purposes?
